BATTERY CONSCIENCE NEEDS CULTIVATION

Most battery difficulties, like other troubles that mar the pleasure, and in these war times the usefulness of motoring, are due to carelessness. The Electric Auto Service Company has issued many a warning in simple statement through its advertising, and by word of mouth to its customers, in regard to the care of batteries. In spite of this, they claim, the automobile public continues to break all the rules of good battery sense. Therefore the company has issued the following fable, which it hopes will serve to give the owner a battery conscience.

A Battery Fable
"Imprudence" is Scotch for "hard-luck." Be that as it may, Henry Hart-luck had trouble from his first day as a car owner. From the dealer's, he drove a party of friends twenty zealous miles into the country and then the motor "quit." After much sweating and swearing he remembered that the dealer had had a reason to assume that he wanted enough gas for a tour. So they hoisted it homeward and arrived with the morning's sun. By the end of the week the bearings went dry and seized for lack of oil. He had meant to get oil that afternoon. The car developed a repertoire of rattles, squeaks, hums, throbs and knocks. But that didn't bother Henry for she kept on running. The steering wheel acquired a turn and a half of lost motion. The brakes got loose and he ran into a street car ten feet ahead of where he meant to stop. Henry paid his fine after leaving the hospital and bought enough of a new car at spare part prices to go with the pieces salvaged from the wreck.

After his third battery's demise, Henry saw a great light and procured a hydrometer. He tried it once on his new battery, then put it into the tool box for a charm. He changed a few tires on dark nights, dragged tools out with expressive language and hurled them back with some force. But the battery worked fine—for two months. One morning the starter laid down. "Quick, Watson, the hydrometer!" Henry found only the remains under a monkey wrench and so failed to diagnose the trouble. He hurried to a battery hospital and the emergency operation proved to be a post mortem, with the verdict, "Died of Petrification of the Plates." Henry then remembered that he had added no water.

REAL WORTH OF BIG TRUCK SYSTEM SHOWN

"Motor trucks have been used for years to a limited extent," says Bert O. Brown, local dealer in Chevrolet passenger cars and trucks, "but their full worth for short and long distance hauls was never appreciated until they were called upon to do what the railroads, steamships and the horse had failed to do. And they made good. They proved beyond all matter of doubt that for all character of transportation needs they are the most efficient, economical and speedy carriers available for all round commercial use.

"At the beginning of this year there were over 400,000 trucks in use in this country. Today motor trucks are moving one-quarter as much goods as all the freight cars on all our extensive railroad systems. There is scarcely a line of business in which they are not doing a major share of the work transporting men, materials and merchandise about cities, through the country and even across the continent at a saving in time and money which, when compared with other means of transportation, represents worthwhile economy.

"Nowhere else has the motor truck proved itself of more assistance than on the farm. By the end of the current year there will be many thousands of trucks in use by farmers. These trucks will take the place of thousands of horses, which in turn will release for agricultural purposes millions of acres of land used exclusively today to raise feed for horses. One motor truck on a farm will replace from two to four men, which means much, especially at this time when farm labor is so scarce. One motor truck will also carry twice the load of a horse-drawn wagon in half the time. One motor truck on a farm will make it a more enjoyable place to live, for it will do much to make farming easier and far more profitable.

"The motor truck has proved its right to a prominent place in every line of business endeavor where speedy, dependable and economical transportation is essential."

KELVIN DOES WELL IN RED CROSS WORK

KELVIN, Sept. 7.—Kelvin comes to the front once more for excellent work done for the Red Cross. During the month of August there were only four women in Kelvin who worked for the Red Cross, the chairman, Mrs. E. Pascale; Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Burke and Mrs. Barton. These four women, whom the local Red Cross officials have affectionately dubbed "The Big Four," have just sent in their month's work, consisting of 25 refugee chemises and three pairs of knitted socks. This, accomplished in spite of the hot weather, is a shining example of the wonderful work the women of Arizona are doing with untiring zeal.

was owned by the Roderick Hardware company.
When the original tire was received it was in a worn and scarred condition, but was delivered back to the owners—the same tire—made over-sized and with a brand new nonskid tread and fresh rubber. Not a square inch of the old tire will be in sight, and one would not be able to tell it from a new tire.

They also say that Gates half-sole tires carry a written guarantee for not less than 3,500 miles of service without puncture—a guarantee which cannot be obtained with a new tire without paying two or three times the price of a Gates half-sole tire.

If every car owner would take five or ten minutes to learn the process that seems like magic every one of them would be better off, and as the Gates Half-Sole company is located conveniently at 431 North Central avenue all should call and investigate.

This is to announce my candidacy for membership in the House of Representatives of the Arizona State Legislature subject to the Democratic primaries to be held September 10, 1918.

I have resided in Arizona for a period of five years, and during said time have been actively engaged in the practice of law at Phoenix, the last two years as a member of the law firm of Niles and Shepherd.

I have always considered it a part of my duty as a citizen of Arizona, to take an active part in public affairs, and am making this campaign at a sacrifice of personal interests. From this view point, it was my privilege and pleasure, as a member of the above named firm, to be instrumental in the defeat of the referendum of the Minimum Wage law for women.

I am pledged to no interest, clique or faction, and if honored by nomination and election, I shall work in the interests of legislation insuring the greatest good to the greatest number.

GATES HALF SOLE IS OUT FOR TIRE MARK

THIS GATES HALF SOLE TIRE
23,000 MILES CONTINUOUS SERVICE WITHOUT BEING REMOVED FROM THE RIM. THIS HALF SOLE TIRE WAS USED ON A CAR OWNED BY RODERICK HARDWARE CO., DALLAS, TEXAS

It hardly seems possible that a tire could run 23,000 miles, but that is the record of a Gates half sole tire. It is a sample of the service given by the tire and it has been known to do even better.

Twenty-three thousand miles of continuous tire wear is "some" record for any good make of tire, but here is a little story of how a tire which had been half-soled by the Gates Half-Sole Tire company actually stood that amount of mileage and was still good for many more miles of service.

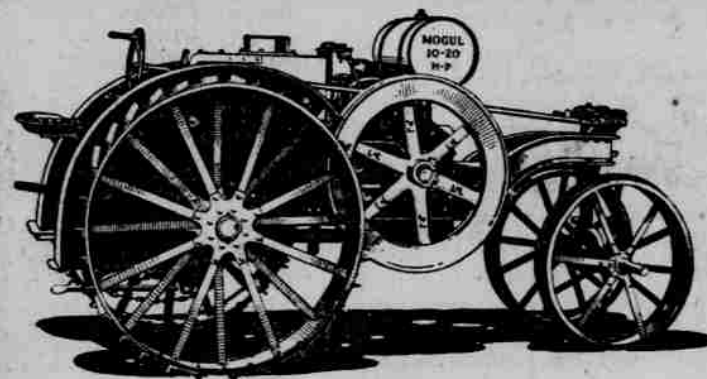

This wonderful record was made with a Gates half-sole tire without being removed from the rim of the car, which
